Interpreting and Applying Lab Results for Improved Diabetes Control

Jessica Gibbons, RD, CDE

This month's Diabetes Telehealth Program will focus on methods to interpret and effectively apply lab results for enhanced diabetes management. Diagnosing and treating several conditions associated with diabetes will also be discussed, including DKA, celiac disease and anemia. Our speaker will be Jessica Gibbons, who is a registered dietitian and certified diabetes educator with 10 years of experience. Much of Jessica's experience and insight was developed in the diabetes education program at Dixie Regional Medical Center in St. George, Utah. There will also be an opportunity to discuss the experiences of fellow program participants.

- CEUs offered for nurses (1.5 hours) and dietitians (1 hour) for all Diabetes Telehealth Programs -

Upcoming Programs:

November 7 – Update on Secondary Prevention Guidelines (sponsored by Utah Heart Disease Program)

December 12 – Fat and the Foot: Obesity, Pre-Diabetes & Peripheral Neuropathy

January 16 – Psychological Issues in the Management of Diabetes
